

This a beautiful example of unnecessary governmental regulation. There exists many laws now on the books concerning the care and handling of animals, including abuse and inhumane treatment regardless of the mode of transportation. The FAA and the airline industry should not be diverted from their primary task - that of airline safety and security. There is no apparent or overriding need demonstrated for such regulations. DO NOT IMPLEMENT THESE REGULATIONS!